Dr. Smith paid a beautiful tribute to the life and character of Frank H. to the life and character of Frank H. Atlee and offered tender and touching words of sympathy to the young wife and loved ones of the deceased. He said that the young man in the strength and beauty of manhood had been taken from the active scenes of this life into the other world. He said the young officer had done what he could, had filled his place well and, had been faithful in life and faithful in death. He spoke of Frank H. Atlee's wish that he might see service on the blood-soaked battlefields of Europe. "He loved his flag and the truths for which it stood and died in their defense," said Dr. Smith. He explained that the young wife and mother would have a double duty to perform and that she must teach the little son the memory of a father who had given his life for his country, who had been frue to country and to God. The pastor asked God's blessings on the wife and son and on the other loved ones.

Will Establish New Sunday School Class With Broad Appeal.

At an interesting meeting of the Laymen's club of the First Presbyte-rian church held in connection with the dinner which was served by the ladies Monday evening, the principal speaker was Maj. H. L. K. Shaw, of the medical officers' training camp. In a twenty minutes' address he told of the service the medical men were reudering, not only in caring for the sick the service the medical men were rendering, not only in caring for the sick and injured, but in preventing diseases which were so prevalent during the Spanish-American war. The speaker described some of the sacrifices made by physicians and surgeons and the loyal spirit they are showing at this time. He told of the method of training these physicians along military ing these physicians along military lines, at the conclusion of which he replied to a number of questions pro-pounded him, principally among which was the manner in which the medical units were assigned to the various regiments and hospitals.

Clark Bradford, the newly-elected president, who presided over the meet-ing, announced the appointment of a number of committees, outlining the activities of the club for the coming year. A resolution was passed wherein the club agrees to contribute $1,000 to-ward the erection of a Tennessee building at the Lees-McRae institute, Banners Elk, N. C. This action of the club was brought about through the visit of Rev. Edgar Tufts, superintendent of the institute, who recently vis-ited Chattanooga, explaining the plans for the erection of three buildings, one of which would be designated the "Tennessee" building, the other two the "North Carolina" and "Virginia" buildings.

One of the activities of the club which was announced at the meeting Monday evening was that of the inauguration of a Sunday school class, which will be presided over by James Finlay. This class will meet every Sunday morning in the gallery of the church, on which occasion prominent speakers will address the class on religious subjects. It was the intention to have Oscar Seagle sing before the class next Sunday, but this has been postponed on account of his absence from the city. The class will not be composed entirely of member of the nonresidents visiting the city. It will be the purpose of the club to extend a special invitation to the men encamped at Fort Oglethorpe and Chickamauga to attend this class when convenient. The new class in no way interferes with the Caldwell Bible class, which has been a feature of the church and Sunday school for a number of

G. W. MAJOR INJURED IN SOUTHERN YARDS Struck by a Passenger Train Near McCallie Viaduct Monday Evening.

G. W. Majors, a switchman in the local yards of the Southern railway. was seriously injured Monday evening about 6:50 o'clock when struck by a passenger train in the yards near the McCallie avenue viaduct. He was carried in Wann's ambulance to Newell's infimary. No definite information re-garding the man's injuries was obtainable from the infirmary when it was called on two different occasions in the addresses that will be given. Tuesday except that Majors was get-ting along fairly well. It is understood, however, that he was badly mangled.

Majors has been in the railroad service for many years. He was formerly a conductor on the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific railway, and for several months has been employed by the Chattanooga terminals as a switchman. He started his railroad career as a brakeman and earned promotion to a conductor's position. While little is known regarding the accident, it is understood that Majors had started to throw a switch when the passenger train struck him.
